OLD LINE IS BEST

GLENDALE MAN TELLS OF ADVANTAGES OF RESERVE INSURANCE

Having in previous articles told of the value and of the mutuality of life insurance, some further remarks on the principles and kinds of insurance may be of interest and benefit to your readers.

Generally speaking, there are two systems of life insurance—assessment (association or fraternal insurance) and level premium or reserve insurance, commonly called "old line." In the former only two elements make for cost—mortality and expense. If the payments are assessed regularly the number or amount of them is regulated according to the death losses and increased or decreased expense.

The advocates of this form say that by this system a man gets insurance at the lowest cost, and is able to keep his reserve money in his pocket for use during the money-making period of his life.

This pass-the-hat plan has furnished protection to thousands, even millions, of people and has been a great blessing to many who could not afford to buy an adequate amount of higher cost insurance. Its principal weakness lies in the fact that the acceleration of death losses as the insured grow older causes an increased cost to them when they are less able to pay than formerly, and the accession of young members, which is necessary to overcome this defection, is not as great as formerly because of the increasing mortality cost and of the organization of new associations or orders where these younger members can secure insurance, for some years at least, at a lower cost.

If an assessment order makes rates which are adequate to carry without increase, they are so high to younger members that they are not attractive, because they would have to be nearly as high as level premium rates. Many people do not know that "old line" companies sell a form of insurance which carries very little reserve, the charge for which includes only mortality and expense. This charge is scientifically based and is guaranteed for five, ten, fifteen or twenty years, sometimes renewable at the end of each term, at an increased rate for a like period. One well known company issues such a policy at a yearly term rate which is non-participating, very low and is renewable each year at the higher rate. This is scientifically correct, and fills a temporary need in many instances but, like assessment insurance, is a very poor form for permanent protection, because it throws the burden of cost on old age when it should be borne in middle or younger life. It is, indeed, pathetic to see the instances which come under my observation where a man at 55 or 60 is paying five to ten times as much as his cost twenty or thirty years previously. The saddest part, however, is to pay such an exorbitant cost for a few years longer and then to find the association insolvent and himself without insurance at a time in life when he may need it most and his rate and health prohibits him from getting any other. Two such failures of old and large orders are of recent occurrence, and in others the rates are increasing alarmingly.

The principle of legal reserve insurance is the collection of premium sufficient to set aside an amount each year, in addition to paying the death losses and expense which, drawing interest at a given rate, will mature the policy at a specified time. If it is a life policy that time of maturity will be 96 (in a few companies it matures at 85). Of course this is an absurd age, so many of the good companies are advocating long endowments which mature at 70, 65 or 60. These can be paid up in 20, 15, 10 or 5 years if desired, as a savings proposition, the amount of self-insurance involved, however, rendering these short payments not so desirable for most people of limited means.

The element of interest entering so widely in a reserve company, the matter of investment takes a large place in its management because the law compels the maintenance of its reserve rate, 3 or 3½ per cent, its failure to do so throwing the company into insolvency or compelling it to reinsurance its business.

These investments, too, must be of the highest character because the fund is inviolable.

I have not stated that all insurance rates of reserve companies are based on very scientific tables of mortality compiled with great care during a period of years. These tables, however, include all classes and as life companies make a very careful selection of their risks the

STUDENTS ATTEND PRESS ASSOCIATION MEETING AT HOLLYWOOD

No more ditching.

This was the edit yesterday of Principal Moyse in the regular weekly assembly. When an assembly is called, every student is required to be present, and hereafter those who have the thoughtlessness to forget this important meeting will be rewarded with more than a gentle slap on the wrist.

Of extreme interest to young journalists was the annual meeting of the Students' Press Association of Southern California, held yesterday at Hollywood High. A half dozen or more representatives from practically every high school in the south were present to exchange ideas and listen to some of the most capable journalists and newspapermen.

With H. R. Minger presiding, a business meeting and a general round table discussion occupied the morning session. Many of the prominent high schools of Southern California publish weekly newspapers. The management of such a paper was talked over, and many helpful suggestions made.

School annuals also formed an interesting subject of discussion. Prices charged, advertising, ways of meeting advanced cost of material, methods of obtaining sufficient subject matter, and the many other essentials of the annual were taken up. Everyone present learned a great deal from what was said.

After the morning session meal tickets were handed out, and all the editors and assistant editors, and managers and assistant managers forgot that they were budding literary geniuses for a time—such an excellent feast did they find set before them.

Even more worth while than the morning meeting was the one held in the afternoon. The first speaker was Odtherman Stevens of the Los Angeles Examiner. Mr. Stevens is a veteran at the game of newspaper reporting. He knows the game from beginning to end, and can tell some interesting experiences with which he has met in his career. He took his audience around the world, introduced it to the royal palace in Mexico City, to noted criminals, to presidents of railways, to insurance agents, to eccentric old ladies, to U. S. presidents. He made his audience feel like reporters—in fact some of them with ambitions probably feel that way yet.

Miss Margaret McKee, Hollywood high school's famous whistler, entertained those present with her wonderful bird notes. She was encored several times.

That some really humorous things may happen to a newspaper man in search of news was proven by Mr. Bliven, instructor in journalism at the University of Southern California. Among other curious things, he described his first newspaper, a high school publication. He was the editor, business manager, advertising manager, printer and newsboy. His list of subscribers numbered six. How his publication went to smash by mismanagement on the part of the advertising manager made an interesting tale when told by Mr. Bliven. The meeting adjourned with a vote of thanks for Hollywood's splendid hospitality.

Glendale was represented at this conference by Harold Venske, Olin Wilson, Earl Brown and Kenneth Beldin.

DEATH DUE TO ACCIDENT

Eli H. Talamante passed away suddenly at the home of his uncle, Charles Hunter, 2834 San Fernando road, Saturday morning. The young man fell from a hay bale two weeks ago, but the injuries he received were not considered serious at the time. He had been ailing for a few days previous to his death. An autopsy was performed and it was decided that death was due to cerebral hemorrhage caused by this fall. He was aged 19 years, 5 months and 15 days. The funeral services will be held Monday in Los Angeles, with interment in Forest Lawn cemetery. Scovener-Letton-Frey company are in charge.

INTERMEDIATE P.T. A.

The Parent-Teacher association of the Third street school will hold their regular meeting on Monday, November 13, at 3 p. m. Professor Oliver of the high school will give an address on "Training Boys and Girls for Definite Service." There will be a meeting of the executive board at 2 p. m. Members of the board will please be prompt.

SOCIETY NOTES

COMPLIMENTS NEW RESIDENT—BIRTHDAY CELEBRATIONS—YELLOW LUNCHEON

MRS. GEORGE FISH ENTERTAINS

In honor of Mrs. W. A. Haines, who has lately come to Glendale to live, Mrs. George Fish of 1421 Hawthorne street entertained Friday afternoon from 2:30 to 4:30.

The invited guests were Mrs. George E. Adams, 1450 Ivy street, Mrs. S. R. Fraze, 1435 West Broadway, Mrs. Earl Schuyler, 1430 Ivy street, Mrs. W. S. Alvord, 1414 West Broadway, Mrs. E. H. Willisford, 231 Orange street, and the guest of honor.

Mr. and Mrs. Haines and son, Wallace, came from Connaught, Ohio, making the trip by auto during the last two months. They spent part of the winter in Glendale two years ago and have now returned planning to make this their home, and are domiciled at 1423 Hawthorne street.

A BIRTHDAY BREAKFAST

Something decidedly new and novel in entertaining occurred yesterday when Mrs. H. V. Everly of 1634 Oak street entertained at breakfast at 7:30 a. m. in honor of Dr. Everly's birthday. And it was a real breakfast, too—not a luncheon or dinner.

Four courses were served, a small part of which was fruit, eggs on toast, bacon, hot rolls, coffee, etc.

Covers were laid for eight, and those partaking were Dr. and Mrs. E. H. Willisford, Mrs. Blake Franklin, Mr. A. R. Chappell, Mrs. C. M. Van Dyke, Mr. Steelman and Dr. and Mrs. Everly. The table and rooms were profusely and beautifully decorated with autumn leaves and large yellow chrysanthemums. All who were so fortunate as to be present agreed that they were glad Dr. Everly was born—not so many years ago—and that it was an exceedingly enjoyable occasion.

YELLOW LUNCHEON

Mrs. J. G. Hunchberger entertained Friday at her home, No. 344 South Central avenue, her guests being members of the Local Charities Committee of the Tuesday Afternoon Club and those who will assist this committee at the refreshment booth at the bazaar to be held December 2 at Masonic Hall. The decorations of yellow and white in the rooms in which the guests were entertained and on the daintily appointed luncheon table were especially beautiful and were the subject of much comment by the guests. The dainty and appetizing luncheon was served to Mrs. A. L. Bryant, Mrs. E. S. McKee and the hostess, who are members of the committee, and Mrs. D. L. Gregg, Mrs. Helen I. Campbell, Mrs. W. E. Edmonds and Mrs. Freeman Kelley, who will assist at the bazaar. During the afternoon plans were made for the booth at which hot wienie sandwiches and hot coffee will be served. The ladies are planning for a big crowd and are going to be prepared to feed them well.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

On Friday, November 10, Miss Winifred Jones, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mattison B. Jones of No. 106 Orange street, attained the age of 16 years and in honor of this momentous event Miss Jones was hostess to sixteen of her young friends at a hearts party Friday evening. Huge yellow chrysanthemums were used in the living-room where the guests were received while the den was beautifully decorated with bouquets of red roses. In the dining-room where the sixteen young people sat down at one long table, a combination of the two colors was used to splendid effect, the table being centered with an exquisite bouquet of deep red carnations and greenery, while at each cover were red hearts with the bonbons.

The principal feature of the evening's entertainment was a game of hearts at which the prize winners were Miss Helen MacMullin and Ed Seay. Music and other fun passed the evening all too quickly. At half past ten the company was seated at the beautifully appointed table and enjoyed the delicious hot supper. Plates were found at the table by means of miniature animals which appeared in duplicate, those for the boys with red ribbons and those for the girls with yellow. When Ed Seay and Miss MacMullin as winner of the girls' prize responded. When all the guests were asked to imitate the animals at their plates, the barnyard chorus which ensued added to the fun.

Those who assisted Miss Jones to make her sixteenth birthday memorable were Misses Katherine Lord, Lucile Barnes, Aileen Preeman, Jeanette McLennan, Helen MacMullin, Jean Anderson, Cecilia Lyons; Lawrence Davis, Ed Seay, Milton Brown, Harry Coker, Dudley Pigg, Kenneth Perrin, Fred Dodge and Walter Beach.

GLENDALE PEOPLE GIVE FREELY TO SUFFERERS IN THE ORIENT

When it comes to the question of giving to relief causes the citizens of Glendale are very liberal. A few weeks ago a committee was appointed with headquarters at the First National Bank to receive contributions for the relief of the Armenians.

Ed M. Lee, cashier of the bank, who served as treasurer of the committee, reported having collected for this purpose $104.93, which he forwarded to the Los Angeles committee. Accompanying the receipt Mr. Lee received the following communication:

Dear Friend:
Your contribution for the relief of the sufferers in the Orient is received and we thank you. Any contribution, large or small, does its part and helps in the immense work which we have undertaken—the salvation of the remnant of a martyred people.

Having lived so many years among the Armenians in Asia Minor, you can imagine with what emotions I consider this whole subject, as such a multitude of my own dear friends have there shed their blood as martyrs, rather than deny the name which, to them, was above every name. Yes, many of the best friends I had on earth have been sacrificed, but I glory in their loyal faith. They have received the martyr's crown.

The least we can do is to help and comfort the stricken, exiled, starving, perishing survivors. God helping us, this we will do. We thank our friends for every item of help.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE MEETING

The regular monthly meeting of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce will be held in the Chamber of Commerce room Monday evening, November 13. Many important items of business are coming up for consideration. The Chamber of Commerce is a city's incubator. If you have civic questions that are worthy of hatching bring them to the Chamber's incubator and Secretary Jackson will see that there is steady temperature such as is necessary for the promotion of worthy projects.

GLENDALE DIRECTORY

One of the desirable features of the new Glendale-Tropico-Casa Verdugo directory that is in process of preparation by The Evening News is the householders' department. In this department the names of the householders are given in the order of the street numbers.

The directory will be about one-third larger than the one published in the spring of 1915. Thus far attention has been given only to compiling the contents of the directory. The question of advertising has been considered a secondary matter and something that will take care of itself, providing the general make-up of directory is such that it will be valuable as a reference book. Advertising rates and space obtainable will be made known to those who inquire at The Evening News office.

CALIFORNIA A "BOOB" STATE

The Chicago Tribune has called California a "boob" state because a majority vote was cast for Wilson for president, and now it seems all the prominent people of Los Angeles are asked to rise up and say California is not a "boob" state. It is easy to call names, and why not take it as an election joke. The population of California is made up largely by people from the East and Middle West. We dare say that twenty-five per cent of the California population were formerly readers of the Chicago Tribune. The bitter political differences between the G. O. P. and Governor Johnson is what prevented a thorough organization of the Republican party in California and it was that lack of organization that gave the state to Wilson.

One of the boys' prize was required to give a toast to the birthday girl and Miss MacMullin as winner of the girls' prize responded. When all the guests were asked to imitate the animals at their plates, the barnyard chorus which ensued added to the fun.

GLENDALE, CALIFORNIA, SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 11, 1916.

CAUSE OF DEFEAT OF CHARLES E. HUGHES

The past fifty years has demonstrated that the rank and file of the people of the United States believe in Republican principles. In that space of time there have been forty-three years of Republican rule against twelve years of Democratic rule. The re-election of Wilson is the first instance in fifty-five years in which a Democratic president has been given the honor of being his own successor in office.

The split in the Republican party in 1912 allowed the Democrats to get into power, and although the differences were overcome between the standpat and progressive divisions of the Republican party in New York, Illinois, Iowa and many other states, when the present campaign opened, such was not the case in California, Kansas and a few other old Republican states. In New York and Illinois the standpat Republican and Progressives came squarely together prior to the opening of the present campaign. The members of these two factions realized the importance of co-operating in the appointing of committees. Such was not the case in California. The leaders of the standpat faction of the Republican party were slow to co-operate with the Progressive element of the party, so much so that when Charles E. Hughes came to California last August on his campaigning tour, the standpat Republicans denied Gov. Hiram Johnson, a member of the Progressive wing of the party, the right to receive and entertain Mr. Hughes. This one act on the part of the standpat Republicans of California was the cause of the state going Democratic at Tuesday's election.

The great business centers of the nation gave strong support to Hughes, not so much because they did not approve of Mr. Wilson as a man, but because these business centers comprise men who have been educated in Republican principles. These men allowed party principle to predominate and trampled under foot all petty jealousies.

In California the petty jealousies were allowed to predominate among the members of the Republican party—there was no such thing as getting together to work in political harmony. Under ordinary circumstances California is a Republican state, but it is a Democratic state (as in the instance of the recent election) when the Johnson and anti-Johnson factions of the Republican party cannot co-operate and do business together. The indications are that the wound is far from being healed and it will not be healed until the leaders of these two factions retire from politics.

MAKING A CITY BEAUTIFUL

There can be no doubt that the present movement for the beautifying of the city of Glendale is an excellent campaign. The ladies who are at the head of the movement are working hard to arouse public opinion and the consequence has been that there have been hundreds of inquiries concerning the trees that can be secured for civic planting. In a civic landscape there is nothing more beautiful than a tree. It relieves the eye with its wonderful greenness. It purifies the air. It stands out an object of beauty and appropriate adornment of the streets.

To further this laudable object is one of the most praiseworthy undertakings in which a committee of women can engage. Long after the hands that have planted the trees and the influences that have brought about their planting have vanished from this scene, the trees that they have planted will remain dispensing beauty and sweetness to all around.

One cannot go to any large city in Europe without seeing the value that is placed on civic tree system. Paris is full of beautiful trees, not only in the parks but even in the very heart of the city, on the boulevards and in the parks trees abound. Every here and there are quaint courts with trees and on fashionable residence streets large, handsome trees adorn the sidewalks.

Berlin is another city of trees. The streets are beautified with lime trees, fine chestnuts, plane trees and many others. The famous boulevard, "Unter den Linden," shows a magnificent avenue of linden trees that are justly celebrated all over Europe.

Vienna, the beautiful capital of Austria, has many trees and many public parks. Its shaded avenues are famous all over Europe. The civic authorities of those centers pride themselves on their wonderful trees that have adorned their streets in some cases for more than a hundred years.

Even old, foggy London has some of the finest street trees in the world. Every fresh rain, and there are many of them, washes from the trees the accumulations of soot which the dense atmosphere of the city deposits on the trees, and they are the freshest and most beautifully green objects in the whole long array of streets. Then there are the numerous parks for which London is famous. These parks are full of trees, ancient and modern, and are a constant wonder and pleasure to those who visit them.

It is undoubtedly the part of any enlightened community to take up the subject of tree-planting, and everyone should respond to the invitation of the civics committee of the Pacific Avenue Parent-Teacher association, which has designated today as tree-planting day for the district west of Central avenue and south of Broadway. Five hundred trees are being furnished by the city forestry department. Other districts will be taken up and soon there will not be a street in the city that will not be a thing of beauty. Everyone should help in this good work.

A FATAL SCOURGE

California has frequently been the host of famous guests who came hither to seek health and relief from the terrible scourge of the world—tuberculosis. Many a brave man and many a hero has succumbed to that fatal disease. The world has heard many times of the wonderful exploits of the brave John Paul Jones, the marvelous sea fighter, who stood forth alone in defense of this republic on the sea against the British. Born in Scotland, John Paul Jones inherited a robust frame from his ancestors, but the hardships of sea life and the fogs of the ocean developed in him that deadly malady. One would like to think of the brave John Paul

Jones standing on the deck of a gallant frigate and going down to death amid the thunder of the fight with his colors nailed to the mast, but he died in Paris, in an obscure inn and of a wasting and cruel disease.

Robert Louis Stevenson also, who was so long a resident of California, where he sought health and release from this same malady, was a lifelong sufferer from this same disease. California did not do him much good, and with the exception of his interesting story of "The Silverado Squatters" and some other tales, Stevenson got no good out of the climate.

Tuberculosis kills men and women in their most active and productive period of life. Laennec, the great French authority on tuberculosis, himself died of the disease. Men like Chopin, the wonderful musician, whose nocturnes are still the wonder of the world; Weber, the strains of whose "Last Waltz" hold us and thrill us ever; Nevin, the author of songs that dwell in the heart of mankind, in all lands; Mendelssohn, the author of "Songs without Words," whose strains keep sounding down the corridors of time; Schiller, the gifted German poet and author of "William Tell" and "The Robbers," all fell before this tyrant of the human race and passed untimely from the scenes of their achievements.

It is very sad to read of the early death of Keats, author of the marvelous "Ode to a Nightingale," "Endymion," "Lamia" and "Isabella," whose light went out ere it was yet well kindled; Thoreau, the great American, naturalist and philanthropist; Stephen Crane, the youthful author of that astonishing book, "The Red Badge of Courage," all succumbed to the ravages of this disease. Lawrence Sterne, creator of the immortal "Uncle Toby;" Marie Bashkirtseff, the naive Russian autobiographer; Sidney Lanier, the youthful poet; Spinoza, the great philosopher, all died of this ravaging disease.

Artemus Ward, the genial American humorist, died of the same complaint and died almost with a characteristic piece of humor on his lips. His medical attendant urged him to take some particularly nauseous medicine and said: "Take it like a good fellow; I would do anything for you." "Would you?" said the humorist. "I undoubtedly would," replied the physician. "Then take it yourself, like a good fellow," said Artemus Ward.

Undoubtedly the world is the poorer by the loss of these men and of many others like them. It is easy to say that the world has plenty of men to spare; but as a matter of fact genius is not so common a quality that the world can spare it. It is a matter of congratulation that rational methods are now in vogue in this and other states for dealing with this most destructive malady.

STUDENTS' HABITS HELD UNSANITARY

Superintendent of Public Schools H. M. Rebok of Santa Monica, who a short time ago insisted that the nude picture of "The Discus Thrower" be removed from the school text books, is now making war along other lines. He is opposing the habit acquired by some of the students of sucking their fingers and thumbs. "The habit," says Superintendent Rebok, "is not limited to the children in the kindergartens and to thumbs, but extends to some of the high school boys and girls who think they are old enough to drive an automobile and go upstairs in the dark, and who seem to relish pencils, penholders, corners of books and even ends of baseball bats."

With platinum now costing around $90 an ounce," said a widely-known manufacturing jeweler of this city, "it may be hard to believe that half a century or so ago peasants in Russia were wearing buttons of this metal on their clothing. They were also using it for handles for knives, forks and umbrellas, and the workmen in the jewelry establishments were using it for making 'pickle' pans, a contrivance now made of 'copper,' that plays quite an important part in the making of jewelry.

VALUE CONFERRED BY DEMAND

"With platinum now costing around $90 an ounce," said a widely-known manufacturing jeweler of this city, "it may be hard to believe that half a century or so ago peasants in Russia were wearing buttons of this metal on their clothing. They were also using it for handles for knives, forks and umbrellas, and the workmen in the jewelry establishments were using it for making 'pickle' pans, a contrivance now made of 'copper,' that plays quite an important part in the making of jewelry. At that time platinum was so plentiful, because there was so little use for it, and the Russian government decided to make coins of it in lieu of silver. The Russian people, however, were suspicious of the new metal, fearing that it had no value, and it was not long before the coins were out of circulation. It was then that they began to appear as buttons and to be melted for purposes more utilitarian than decorative."

The Evening News contains many valuable hints that are worth reading and filing away for future reference. Why not preserve every copy of the paper and at regular intervals have them bound in a substantial form for future reference?

Mrs. H. C. Harlan and small son, James, of Mariposa street leave today for Salt Lake City to join Mr. Harlan, who left a week ago to take his new position as manager of the J. Durbin Surgical company at that place. They will make their home in Salt Lake City.

J. B. Doner has had his office room at 1020 Broadway divided by a low railing. Mr. Doner says his reason for installing the new partition is that his customers will not be allowed to cause too great congestion when they are paying their bills. Very thoughtful, indeed.

According to a decision of U. S. Attorney Webb, Gov. Hiram Johnson, who has just been elected United States senator, may continue to serve as governor of California until December, 1917, unless a special session of congress should be called after March 4, 1917, and prior to December, 1917.

The interior of the Pacific Electric station building at the corner of Broadway and Brand boulevard is being overhauled. More office room seems to be the reason for the change.

The topic at the next meeting of the Los Angeles County Press Association's meeting Monday evening, November 13, will be "Job Printing and Advertising Prices Are Too Low."

Mr. W. J. Barnes of No. 1014 Melrose street owner of the Walton chicken ranch, has increased his ranch considerably and will have more than likely a string of his White Orpingtons ready for the show.

J. Walter Elliot of No. 1005 North Central avenue, one of the main boosters of the coming poultry show, is very busy shaping up his flock of show birds and encouraging others in every way to make the show a success.

The copy for the 1916 premium list of the Glendale-Tropic poultry show is now in the hands of the printer and the job will be completed about the middle of next week. This year the show will be held in a large tent at the corner of Maryland avenue and Broadway.

Although automobiles have come into quite general use and Spencer Robinson of Glendale is the owner of a large touring car, he has not yet given up the habit of taking his most daily horse back ride. Mr. Robinson is a lover of fine horses and enjoys riding them.

DEATH OF MR. SHIPMAN

Sigmund A. Shipman, whose home had been at No. 332 North Louise, was found dead in his bed this morning. The funeral services will be held from the Jewel City Undertaking Parlors Wednesday, November 15 at 2 o'clock.

DEATH OF ALBERT PETERS

Albert Peters, who has resided at 1415 West Third street, Glendale, for about two years, died Friday, November 10. Mr. Peters was born in Germany, residing in Iowa for 50 years. No arrangements have been made at this writing for the funeral services.

PLANT PARTY

Next Thursday evening at 8 o'clock sharp a plant party will be held by the Glendale Garden society. The plant party which took place last spring was a great success, and people are looking forward to next Thursday when everybody is asked to bring a plant (or plants) and everybody may take away a plant. Tea will be served, vocal solos have been kindly promised by Dr. Harrower of 312 East Broadway and Mr. G. B. Miller will preside at the piano. These pleasant social meetings are held on the third Thursday of each month in the library of the Third street school, Third and Kenwood. A cordial invitation is extended to the public at all times. Folks who love flowers, who are interested in home and civic beauty, who have at heart the progress of Glendale—visitors or strangers desiring to make congenial acquaintances—all are invited. The more, the merrier. It costs nothing.

TIMMNER-LOTT CONCERT

Among Glendale musicians and music lovers who attended the first of the Timmner-Lott series of chamber concerts at the woman's club house Thursday evening were Mr. A. Lowinsky, Dr. and Mrs. C. A. Webb, Miss Susine Wessels and Miss Olds. Mr. and Mrs. Christian Timmner resided in Glendale last winter and while here won many warm friends and enthusiastic admirers. They are artists of international reputation and with Mrs. Clifford Lott, pianist, have formed a trio which in its own particular province probably surpasses anything of the kind on the coast. The three magnificent numbers—piano trio, D major of Beethoven sonata (piano and violin) by Franck and the piano trio of Barbiel were rendered with the highest degree of musicianship.

The gems of musical composition for trios and quartettes are seldom heard performed on account of their demands upon the artist, both as to skill and careful preparation. The Timmner-Lott recitals occur each month throughout the season and are certainly a rare opportunity for music-lovers.

Central Avenue Parent-Teacher association held a regular monthly meeting Thursday, November 9, at the school auditorium. Mrs. N. C. Kelly, the first vice-president, occupied the chair in the absence of the president, Mrs. Kurtz. The topic of the afternoon was "Current Events," and Mrs. Hutchinson gave a very interesting talk on the most recent topic of the day, the necessity of a civic center for Glendale. Mrs. Kelly gave a very instructive report of the work outlined at the Santa Ana convention, after which the various chairmen gave their reports. A very pleasing part of the program was the piano selections, rendered by Grace and Robert Tower of Glendale, the first a duet and the second a piano solo, "Titania," by Robert Tower, his rendition showing great talent.

METHODIST LADIES ARE WORKERS

The Friday and Saturday's bazaar and Friday evening's chicken pie dinner in the Wilson Block, No. 914 West Broadway, has proven that the Methodist ladies are hustlers. Workers were on hand early Friday morning and the provisions and fancy goods began to come in until the counters and walls were decorated with many fancy articles of ladies' aprons, etc. Several hundred people availed themselves of the excellent chicken pie dinner which was served from 5 to 8 o'clock Friday.

WILSONITES WILL CELEBRATE

The Woodrow Wilson Independent league will hold an open air celebration in Glendale Tuesday evening, November 14.

NEW PARTNERSHIP

J. B. Doner and F. H. Wilkin, Jr., have formed a partnership in the real estate business at Mr. Doner's former location, 1020 West Broadway, and are having the interior of the offices redecorated.

CONGRESSMAN SPEAKSA STATESMAN ON RELIGION

Congressman Charles H. Randall is scheduled to speak at the First Methodist church on Sunday evening. He will give an address in the interests of Christian manhood. As a statesman Mr. Randall is making a name for himself. He is the only Prohibitionist in congress and is making his presence felt in many ways.

Mr. Randall, like President Woodrow Wilson and Charles E. Hughes, is a "preacher's boy." His address will be a statesman's message on vital religion.

At the close of Mr. Randall's address the newly elected officers of the Brotherhood will be installed.

IF WE LIVED LONGER

If the years of a man's life were seven hundred to a thousand years instead of three score years and ten, we should not merely live longer; we should live differently. We might or we might not do less "hustling," but in making our plans and in our productive activities we should emphasize less the day by day interests and the immediate return. We should think more painstakingly of the future. We should forecast. We should build substantially, and probably to greater extent than a short-lived mankind does, we should pay in advance.

These considerations go far to explain the intensity of our individualism, the nebulosity and nervousness of our public-mindedness. We are selfish, of course. Altruism is of slow growth, and these hindrances to a life of generous citizenship are magnified by the sense of the shortness of our active existence.

Every ambitious man knows that the success or failure of his career turns upon the concentration of his business or professional exertions for fifteen or twenty years. Relaxation, attention diverted from profession or business to public service in any form, may mean personal disaster and the ruin of family fortune.—The Clay Worker.

death losses in most companies are far below the expected.

Economical management, also, can reduce the cost of handling the business to a point below the estimate, in addition to securing a considerably larger rate of interest on the invested fund than is legally required. These savings in mortality and expense, and gain in interest, constitute a surplus which, of course, belongs to the policy holders in mutual companies, a part of which is set aside in a surplus fund to provide for contingencies, but the larger part is returned to them each year in so-called "dividends." These are not profits, as that term usually implies, but are the unused portions of the premiums created by the faithful and efficient management of the company. And this management, like that in all human affairs, is not equally good. There are about 250 old line life insurance companies in the U. S., in all of which the reserve is secure, but there is a wide difference in the management and consequent net cost to the insured.

The great value of the reserve lies not alone in the building up of the fund to mature the policy but, of course, belongs to the policy holder during its entire history and can be utilized by him at any time of misfortune or need in cash or loan, to purchase a reduced amount of "paid for" insurance, or to extend the face value of the insurance for a term of years. Thousands of people have had reason to know of the great value of such a sinking fund for use when it could be had from nowhere or nobody else.

The vast importance of this safeguard to other property can hardly be overestimated. With rich as well as poor, misfortune may come "as a thief in the night." Wealthy business men are very heavy carriers of life insurance. A noted instance of this is that of Frank A. Vanderlip, president of the great City National Bank of New York, whose investments would probably be considered as absolutely secure, but who very recently took out $600,000 more of life insurance.

BRISCOE AGAIN BREAKS RECORD IN SWIFT RUN UP MT. DIABLO

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 11.—In a sensational dash from Oakland to the summit of Mount Diablo, a distance of thirty-three miles, to an elevation of 3869 feet above sea level, in 55 minutes flat, a four-cylinder Briscoe touring car, driven by Ben Hammond, has again brought the championship title for this grueling course back to the Briscoe camp. Hammond and his peppery mount raced from Oakland to the summit of the mountain last Sunday and chopped four minutes off the previous record.

Hammond was accompanied by three observers, and he gave them the thrill of their lives by roaring up the thirty-three miles of winding mountain grades, and when the Briscoe flashed across the summit in 55 minutes, elapsed time, there was a rousing cheer.

Sunday's great dash marked the second time that Hammond has broken the record, and incidentally the Briscoe camp again is in possession of the two trophies that go with the shattering of the speed mark.

Because of its length, grades and winding, twisting road, the Mount Diablo course is one of the most rigorous demonstration courses in California and the record has been attacked frequently.

The first real speed shown on the hill was by a Franklin driven by Will Dandy. An Oakland six, driven by Alden McElrath, came along next and officially set the mark at 61 minutes.

Charles Fraser, driving a Chevrolet four-ninety, pulled it down to 66½ minutes, and then Ben Hammond in a Briscoe shaved it to 61 minutes.

Several weeks ago Fraser in his Chevrolet went after the record again and succeeded in taking two minutes off the Briscoe's time.

Not to be outdone, Hammond came back in a four-cylinder Briscoe, and, carrying four passengers, snorted up the tortuous climb in four minutes faster time, bringing the record down to 55 minutes, which is lightning fast considering the rise to an elevation of 3869 feet and the numerous curves that must be taken at high speed.

The news of the record-breaking run was a source of gratification to Col. C. L. Hewes, manager, and Forest Arnold, sales manager of the Pacific Kissel Kar branch.

The little Briscoe car with Eddie Hearne at the wheel won the twenty-five-mile international State fair sweepstakes race at the Texas State fair, held at Dallas, October 23, defeating twelve other cars, nine of which were of much larger piston displacement. Herne covered the twenty-five miles in 21m. and 49s.
